2. One upper-division course: 1648 to present

Electives Courses

In addition to three upper-division survey courses, students are required to take nine upper-division courses to be selected in consultation with a faculty adviser. JWSP 101, 102, 103, and 104 are acceptable here.

Students can select from two tracks to satisfy the language proficiency requirement for the Jewish Studies major. Students who place into a second year or higher language course may fulfill this requirement with a higher level language course, by petition.

1. Students are required to complete two years (six-course series) of Hebrew language study.

OR

2. One year of Hebrew language study (three-course series) AND one year of another non-English language study (three-course series) relevant to Jewish history and culture. Qualifying languages include German, Spanish, French, Arabic, Russian, or Italian. Other languages can apply by approval of faculty adviser.
